The Gallery is dedicated to furthering artists and their message. The culture that we are a part of has been dominated by name brands that lead the consumer to buy not for the message or artistic value of the commodity, but rather for a name that endorses the piece. We aim to serve as the middleman between the artist and the consumer. By selecting works from all types of artists the network will become a community in which the artists will support each other based on the viewers that they bring forth and in turn thrive on the success of one another. As we build the network, we want to celebrate all forms of creativity and advance the intellectuals who continue to create and inspire. Two-page spread excerpt from “CAKE”.
Whether Head of State or Head of Household, there are some people who can have pretty much anything they desire. They build empires. They make history. They fall in love. They have fascinating lives. And, like all of us, they want photographs of the people they love. A record of why their life matters. To them.

Allison Cane and Jennifer Gregori’s photographic work consistently illuminates the beauty, complexity and overwhelming grace of their subjects. They have earned an uncommonly appreciative and loyal following by always surpassing the expectations of those accustomed to the very best.

Equally impressive is that they accomplish this without turning any of it into a major production. No entourage. No drama. No stress. And No digital. No kidding.
